He wrote some brief sketches of some of his ancestors. He was born in Cornish or Hanover, N. Among his papers, we find the following:

"BOSTON, MAY 24, 1881.

As I intend to soon leave Boston, the city of my adoption, I hope that when I die the circumstances may be such that the last verse in my poem on Mt. Auburn cemetery may prove true in relation to my remains."

The verse he referred to reads thus:

"With kindred's dust e'er unforget,
Let mine repose when life hath fled
Within thy gates, dear hallowed spot,
'Mt. Auburn,' 'City of the Dead.'"

The following is from a biographical sketch of his life:

"His early life was one of intense devotion to study. When quite a youth he was recognized as an excellent scholar, having at the age of 12 thoroughly mastered all the English branches then taught in the common schools of New England. A year or two later he is found contributing articles of decided merit to various papers. He composed with equal facility in verse or prose and at the age of 15 was heard from the platform as an acceptable lecturer. Having shown himself such an accomplished student it was a source of regret at the time that he was to be denied the advantages of a collegiate training. This did not however, change the fact as just at the period when his university career might have begun he was thrown upon his own resources for a livelihood. Notwithstanding his reverses he went to work with a will and in the moments snatched from manual labor, laid the foundation of a manhood than which, in its way, it has been the privilege of but few to be more brilliant. In the classical and scientific branches taught in our American colleges he became thoroughly proficient. Afterwards a knowledge of the law was added and then that of medicine. Theology of course remained the central theme on which his best endeavors have been concentrated. When quite young he went to Illinois. In 1857 he professed religion and then, for the first time, were his thoughts seriously directed towards the ministry. In 1858 he was received on trial in the Illinois conference. Indeed his first efforts were so successful that his subsequent career seems but the fulfilment of the prediction uttered in his youth concerning him. He was called to the first appointments in the state and through the west, and became one of the most brilliant divines known in that section. In 1870 he accepted a charge at Evansville, Ind., as the pastor of Trinity church, the largest of the denomination in that state. His eloquence had the natural effect of drawing crowds to hear him and his zeal in promoting the material welfare of the church was equally fruitful in its consequences. At the close of his term in Evansville he was called to the Fourth St. church at Wheeling, W. Va., where he remained one year when he accepted the invitation to preside over Grace church in Baltimore; there the grandest results of his ministry were achieved, he pleased the public ear at once and perhaps no better evidence is needed of the enthusiasm he inspired, than the erection of the splendid structure in which the congregation has since continued to worship."

ABISHUR B. CARPENTER⁹ 3874, of Charles 1842,

Samuel 23, Samuel 62, Charles 244, Samuel 757, Charles 1842.

Gen. 10. Children 2, b. in Boston, Mass.

6144. I. GEORGE S. was b. Sept. 22, 1837. Residence, Boston, Mass.
6145. II. ELIZA C. was b. April 10, 1839; m. Joseph B. Clark. Residence, Boston. They have one son, George S., b. Oct. 14, 1860.

Charles Tubbs, Esq., of Osceola, writes that Abijah emigrated to Pennsylvania at an early day and gives the names of his 12 children, no mention of being a twin. Abijah went west. George S. states that he is very sure that his father was Abijah and a twin to Charles and that he had only two children, George S. and Eliza C. The father of George S. died when he was a small child and he does not recollect the names of the family. The similarity of the names Abishur and Abijah probably causes the difference of opinion as to who were the twins in the family and the father of George S. See note under family 2734.

Carpenter served as captain, residence, Waterbury, Conn.: he enlisted Aug. 4, 1862 and was mustered in Aug. 24, 1862. Was then 1st lieutenant in Company D, 1st Connecticut regiment, was wounded Dec. 13, 1862 at Fredericksburg, Va. Transferred as captain of Company E, Sept. 15, 1863, was discharged, Nov. 29, 1867 as member of Company C, 14th regiment, Dwight Morris, colonel.

A more complete account is given by a member of the family: "Samuel Walker Carpenter enlisted as private in the 1st Connecticut regiment of infantry, at the first call of Abraham Lincoln, April, 1861 for three months, was promoted to second lieutenant before the regiment left New Haven, Conn. for Washington. He was again promoted to 1st lieutenant, at Washington, and participated in the first battle of Bull Run. He was in the brigade commanded by Colonel afterwards Gen. E. D. Keyes and composed of the 1st, 2d and 3d Connecticut and 2d Maine volunteer infantry, which was the only brigade of the whole army which kept its organization intact at the memorable defeat; marching back to Falls Church, Va. in good order, thus saving over one million dollars' worth of property belonging to the government. He was mustered out with the regiment at New Haven, Conn. late in July of 1861. He again volunteered in the 14th regiment of Connecticut volunteers mustered in as captain of Company C, of that regiment at Hartford, Conn., Aug. 20, 1862. The regiment left for Washington the next day, and was assigned to the 2d army corps, and participated in the battle of Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862. He was also in the battle of Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862, where he received a gunshot wound in the foot in the charge made on Marye's Heights he being then in command of his regiment his superior officers all being killed or wounded. His wound having disabled him for active service, he was transferred as captain to the U. S. veteran reserve corps in which he served till Dec. 31, 1865, when he was assigned to duty in the Freedman's Bureau, where he remained to Dec. 13, 1867 when he was mustered out.

- Charles Valentine emigrated from Uxbridge, Mass., in 1837, and settled at Dundee, Kane Co., Ill., on land purchased of the U. S. government by his brother, Daniel G. Carpenter, on which he lived till his death. By making additions from time to time he acquired a farm of 200 acres. For 30 years the farm was stocked with sheep. As the city of Chicago grew, there was a demand for milk. He soon fell into line with his neighbors and became a producer of milk. He commenced housekeeping in a log cabin on his brother's farm. In 1845 he erected a more comfortable and pretentious dwelling, a frame house. The lumber was drawn from Chicago by team, a distance of about 40 miles. His house was noted for its hospitalities for 30 years. In this house his daughter Maria was married Aug. 30, 1843, to John Spring Buck and in this house the granddaughter, Lilian Eugenia Buck, was born, June 15, 1845. Here the wife of Charles Valentine died and here his brother, Daniel George, died January 6, 1874. Here the granddaughter, L. E. Buck, was married to George Frederick Alvedson; here their two children were born; here Charles V. Carpenter's second wife died and from here his own body was borne. This house now, in 1895, is occupied by his only living heir, Mrs. Lilian E. Buck Alvedson. Around the farm and encroaching on its borders has grown the northeastern portion of Carpentersville. Charles V. was generous to a fault, his faults were few, his worthy acts many.

the granddaughter of Alice Taylor Dexter, who m. Dea. Edward Taylor. Joseph d. in Providence, R. I., Aug. 14, 1886, aged 72 years. A merchant and manufacturer.

Joseph's mansion on Washington Street was sold in 1856 to make room for the new public library building. The dwelling house was erected nearly 60 years ago and at that time was one of the finest dwelling houses in the city and has been occupied by the family for more than 50 years. Obituary notice: "In this city, Aug. 14, 1886, Joseph Carpenter died in the 72d year of his age. He was born in Uxbridge, Mass., March 10, 1815. His early education was received at the village school and was limited to the advantages which a few years could afford. Several years were passed in the store, then kept by the late Deacon Josiah Chapin in Uxbridge. Afterwards he removed to Providence, and was clerk in the wool business of the late Royal Chapin, No. 6281. His remarkable industry and the evidences of unusual business ability were soon observed by the leading merchants of Providence. In a few years he commenced business on his own account, associated with partners, and in a short time had established and developed the largest 'Pulled Wool' business at that time in New England. In all his business relations, he was prompt and tireless, scrupulously just and exact. He was conscious of his own ability and integrity, and judging others by his own standard, he often over estimated their capacities, which in several instances resulted in great pecuniary losses to himself. He believed in his fellowmen to the last, and the hardest lesson for him to learn, was that anyone was capable of doing a deliberate act of injustice. In the prime of his life, he was identified with the public interests of our city. He was a competent and efficient member of our state legislature. He was first among the merchants of Providence to pay for original surveys for the Providence & Worcester railroad and he probably more than any other person, urged forward the organization and construction of this road, which has aided so much in developing the growth, not only of Providence, but of towns now flourishing along the Blackstone river. An incident is mentioned in this connection: at a meeting of capitalists of Providence, held to consider the expediency of building the Worcester railroad, Mr. Duncan inquired of Mr. Carpenter what reason he had for believing the road would succeed, when the Blackstone canal had proved a failure, to which he made a characteristic reply 'That he could not well conceive of the success of a canal that was frozen every winter and dry every summer.' The company was organized, and the road was a success. A score of woolen mills in and near this state are standing monuments of his co-operative enterprise and successful labor. His judgment in all business matters was highly esteemed, and his counsel sought on every hand by his mercantile acquaintances. His heart was as tender as a child's, and so long as he had the means, no worthy object of charity appealed to him in vain. His sympathetic impulses never failed to respond to the sighs of the afflicted or to the sufferings of the unfortunate. He was a regular attendant at church and was true to the education of his youth in this respect. His seat was never vacant so long as his health would permit, freely giving to all the calls made upon him for the support of moral and religious influence, he said, 'It was more blessed to give than to receive.' But his goodness and kindness were exhibited in their most lovely aspects within the circle of his family. No husband could be more devoted. No father could be more affectionate. No public entertainment, no private festivity presented to him so many attractions as did his own home. And here, surrounded by his children and grandchildren, in the companionship of good books his leisure hours were passed. Though his face had not been seen for many years in the business centres of our city, there are a great many now living, and acting their part in the last scene of life's drama who will pause when they hear of his death and shed a tear of grateful remembrance over his bier."

Poetry to the family friends of Mary S. Carpenter:

"Sorrowing mother! who thy grief can tell?
Another blow from Death's relentless hand
Has fallen where so recently one fell.
And thinned again thy cherished household band.

Stricken sister! who shall now thy sister be?
Though earthly friends may gather by thy side,
Earth offers none so near or dear to thee
As that fond one who lately drooped and died.

Mourning brothers! call ye this stroke severe?
To heaven's all-wise decrees submissive bend;
Though short her date, no truth appears more clear—
That life is long which answers life's great end."

O friends, as down life's troubled stream ye glide,
With faith's pure vision, upward lift your eyes;
This tribute is enough for mortal pride—
Your youthful friend has passed into the skies."

Bernardston, April 2, 1856.

6439. VII. CHARLES CARROLL was b. July 9, 1836; m. Feronia N. Rice, of Auburn, (1459)
Mass., daughter of Ezra and Luthera (Knowlton) Rice, May 1, 1862.
Residence, Andover, Mass. A Congregational minister.

When a boy he first commenced his career by serving as a clerk in a periodical bookstore at Greenfield, Mass. He was afterwards employed in Merriam's book store. He commenced his education by attending the Goodale academy at Bernardston, Williston seminary, Easthampton and Kimball Union academy Meriden, N. H. Ill health prevented him from entering college. He afterwards, in preparing for missionary service, took two courses of lectures at Harvard Medical college. He was a graduate of Andover Theological seminary; he received the honorary degree of A. M. from Hamilton college in 1869 and from Dartmouth college in 1887. He was ordained in Montreal, Can., May 9, 1860, as missionary of the Canada Foreign Missionary society to the coast of Labrador, where he had already been employed for two years, having gone there in 1858 to explore the region bordering on the straits of Belle Isle, with reference to a missionary station. This was established at Caribou island, and a mission-house was erected there in 1859. A winter mission station was subsequently established at Esquimaux river. Failure of health in that cold climate compelled him to leave the coast in the fall of 1864, although he returned there the following summer. In the winter intervening, he was in the service of the U. S. Christian commission at City Point, Va., acting as cashier of that organization for the "Armies operating against Richmond," entering Petersburg on the morning of the capture and being at Richmond when Lee surrendered.

 From 1866 to 1872 he was superintendent of the Lookout Mountain Educational institution at Lookout Mountain, Tenn., established by Christopher R. Robert of New York, with the design of introducing a loyal Christian education for white youth of the South, impoverished by the long war. From 1872 to 1875 he resided in Andover, Mass., engaged in theological study. He was pastor of the Rockville Congregational church at Peabody, Mass., from 1875 to 1880, and of the Congregational church at Mount Vernon, N. H., from 1880 to 1885. He retired then from the active ministry in feeble health, residing since in Andover, Mass. He was the first editor of the Andover Townsman, 1887-1889. Since 1886, he has been a weekly contributor to the Congregationalist, largely though not wholly, in the juvenile department. From 1890, he has been the necrologist of Andover Theological seminary and has been working for several years on a biographical catalogue of Phillips academy of Andover, Mass. He is a member of Essex institute of Salem, and the New England Historic Genealogical society of Boston.

6635. I. WILLARD OSCAR was b. Aug. 25, 1833; m. Mary E. Warden, of (1486) Cohoes, N. Y.; d. July 29, 1892.

Willard Oscar Carpenter at the age of 14 was sent to Williams college. His term at college was brief. In his 15th year he shipped on a sailing vessel making a two years' cruise—which included South America, the West Indies and Africa. He had an eager mind. The voyage was a good school. When he returned to this country his uncle Willard Carpenter, a wealthy citizen of Evansville, Ind., bought a farm for him near Evansville. But farming was not the rover's taste. After two years of farm life he left and went to New Orleans. Then he learned telegraphy. After two years in New Orleans he left for Washington, D. C. in 1855. There he was employed in the Morse telegraph office as an expert operator. In that year he was married. His desire was to make Washington his home but by the influence of his wife and friends he returned to Troy, N. Y., as his permanent home. Mr. Carpenter's first employment on his return was an operator in the Western Union telegraph office. He subsequently became its manager. About the time the war broke out he opened a photograph gallery.

The first newspaper work which he did was for the Troy Sunday News whose publication was commenced, Aug. 21, 1864. This employment was not permanent. On March 24, 1867, Colonel McArthur revived the Northern Budget, as a Sunday paper and Willard O. Carpenter was a member of the staff. He continued his connection with the Budget uninterruptedly until his death. Before his last sickness he had missed being at the office but two Sundays. He left a property of considerable proportions to his son Willard Oscar and it is estimated that the latter died possessed of land, goods and chattels of the value of $75,000. Mr. Carpenter is survived by his wife, two daughters, Miss Libbie V. Carpenter and Mrs. William B. Ball, also a grandson Williard Oscar Carpenter, Jr.

Mr. Carpenter at the time of his death was the dean of the newspaper fraternity. He had been longer in consecutive service than any other retained writer for the newspapers of that city.

One of the finest and most picturesque homes in the county of Simcoe is that of Edward R. Carpenter at Collingwood. It stands on a two-acre plot of ground, at the corner of Oak and Third streets. It is of the Queen Anne style of architecture and was erected in 1881 at a cost of about $15,000, site included.

At the age of 15, Edward R. Carpenter removed from Woodstock, Conn. to Cleveland, Ohio. After residing here for one year he went to Canada and sojourned there for a short time at London, Ont. In 1859 he settled permanently at Collingwood, a clerk in the mercantile house of Paul Richmond & Co. In 1863 Mr. Carpenter engaged in the drug business, founding what has since become one of the largest and most prosperous enterprises of its kind in northern Ontario. Thirteen years ago he took possession of the store he now occupies. It is especially adapted to the purpose to which it has since been devoted. It is elaborately fitted and substantially furnished. In addition to an extensive drug business he does a large trade in leather and findings and makes a speciality of American and Canadian coal oil of which he handles immense quantities; he is local agent for the American Express company, for the Bell Telephone company, for the White Star line of ocean steamers. Mr. Carpenter is a typical New Englander, energetic, industrious and wide-awake.

Young Dillingham Carpenter was a student in the Columbia law school in 1887: he inherits the stalwart republican politics of his distinguished father.

A good story is told of Paul Carpenter, the energetic young president of the Young Men's Republican club of the last campaign, says the Milwaukee Wisconsin. He is, as everybody knows, a son of the late Senator Matt H. Carpenter, and the incident happened when he was a very young boy and while his father was representing the state in the senate. At a gathering one evening, somebody said: "Well, Paul, what are you going to be when you grow up?" "Oh, I don't know," replied the young patriot, "I'd like to be a hack-driver, but I suppose I'll have to be a senator, like papa."

June 26, 1895.—Arthur F. Carpenter of this city, who was graduated at Yale on Wednesday, in addition to winning the medal annually given by the Cobden club of England; also won a one year honor and second dispute. These are honors upon the possession of which Mr. Carpenter may well be congratulated. The Cobden club is the famous free trade club of England. It gives this medal each year for the best essay on a stated subject. Mr. Carpenter's essay was on the currency question. It was a strong argument against the free silver heresy. The Baltimore plan was fully discussed and, in fact, the whole range of the currency question was considered, together with the influence of protective tariffs upon a nation's welfare.

7225. I. WESLEY MANNING; m. Carrie Shores; he d. Jan. 7, 1888, aged 50. A physician connected with a college of physicians and surgeons in New York city.

When he was quite a young man he represented his district in the New York State Legislature. Dr. Wesley M. Carpenter was one of the best known medical writers and physicians of the city of New York; he was found dead in his bed; he graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons and after settling in New York, acquired a large practice. About 15 years ago he gave that up on account of his health and devoted his entire time to medical journalism; he was the editor of the Medical Epitome and one of the compilers of the American Encyclopedia of Surgery. At the time of his death he was a professor of the University of the City of New York and Secretary of the County Medical Society and a Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine; he was editor of Wood's Household Practice of Medicine, Hygiene and Surgery, a work of 749 pages and also of an index of practice of medicine.

Dr. Carpenter was a native of Erieville, Madison Co., N. Y. and was about 49 years of age. He was an earnest Christian, always observing family prayers and regularly attended preaching at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, with Mrs. Carpenter, and prayer meetings whenever his engagements and health would permit; but he was devotedly attached to the little Methodist Episcopal Church at Erieville. He kept his membership there. He sent the church $50 every year and provided that it should continue to receive this sum after his death. An eminent physician of New York remarked after his death that Dr. Carpenter was so related to the medical profession by the men he knew, the offices he held and the work he did that no medical man in New York could have died and been more missed. We are informed by Dr. M. Chesney who conducted his funeral that Dr. Carpenter offered to treat freely, worthy needy cases and always wished to be reminded when the poor fund of the church was low.

Her husband joined the conference in 1853 and for eighteen years she was an earnest and faithful helper in his work. In 1874, her health failed and she was never afterwards able to engage in active Christian labor. In reviewing the life of this excellent Christian woman we find nothing to censure but much to commend. Her worth in her home was beyond all price; she trained her children in the fear of the Lord and had the happiness of seeing them all useful and earnest laborers in the church. Her piety was humble, consistent and growing. She turned from her own grief to minister to the wants and mitigate the sorrows of others. The April before her death her golden wedding was celebrated.

Mrs. A. Willard Case is a member of the Daughters of the Revolution and has been appointed regent for Manchester, Conn. As a school girl she excelled in writing poetry, as appears from her pen on many important occasions, of anniversaries and in literary papers.

Judge Carpenter was brought up on his father's farm and divided his time between agricultural labor and study. When 17 years old he was sufficiently well advanced in his studies to engage in school teaching, his first charge being in the town of Willington in the northern part of the state. He continued to teach at intervals during a period of seven years. He prepared himself for college at the Ellington institute. Several circumstances combined to prevent him carrying out his intentions regarding a college education and in 1844 he began to study law. He had a thorough legal training in the office of Jonathan A. Welch of Brooklyn, Conn., and in December, 1846, was admitted to the bar. He soon engaged in active practice in his native place. He remained there until March, 1851, when he removed to Danielsonville, succeeding to the practice of the Hon. Thomas Backus.

"Three important changes in the Judiciary of Connecticut went into effect on Sunday, Jan. 14, 18—. Justice Elisha Carpenter of the Supreme Court of Errors will retire on account of age limitation. It will be gratifying to the citizens of Connecticut to know that although retired from the bench while in the full vigor of his intellect the state will yet be able to have the benefit of Justice Carpenter's ripe experience and judicial acumen in another capacity, that of a state referee, to which he was appointed by the General Assembly at its last session. Judge Elisha Carpenter has had a continuous service of nearly 33 years on the bench of his native state. He was born in that portion of the town of Ashford now known as Eastford. He received a common school and academic education. Prior to his appointment to the Superior Court Bench he had been a Judge of Probate and also State's Attorney for Windham county. He had also served two terms in the State Senate. The first term was in 1857. In 1858 he was returned to the State Senate from the old Fourteenth District. Judge Carpenter was president pro tem. during that session. In 1861 he represented the town of Killingly, in the General Assembly
